1 MR. BERLIN: All right.

2 THE COURT: I have a number of interns in 3 here. I find the attorneys in this case to have 4 been highly professional. It's an interesting
5 case. It poses very interesting, very serious
6 constitutional law issues, which I find to be 7 challenging, and it certainly is more interesting
8 than a number of mortgage foreclosures that we 9 have a lot of.

10 So, no, Mr. Berlin, when the appellate court
11 sends me instruction, I take them to heart. I
12 don't necessarily accuse the lawyers. I think 13 it's just part of the system that we live in, and 14 I am grateful that we do have the system. I think 15 it's a wonderful system; it's the best in the 16 world.

17 MR. BERLIN: Delighted to hear that, Your 18 Honor. My point was simply this, which is even 19 though we have disagreed and in some cases
20 strongly about the merits of the case, I don't 21 ever think for a moment that the plaintiff -- what 22 the plaintiff I think is hoping is that, you know,
23 in frustration about that, that you might stick it
24 to us, the lawyers who made that happen. And I
25 know that in my heart of hearts that that's not
