HULK HOGAN WRESTLES WITH SERIOUS CHARGES

Sun-Sentinel wire services

Pro wrestler Hulk Hogan says a woman is trying to put the squeeze on him by claiming he sexually assaulted her.

Hogan sued Kate Kennedy, 29, in federal court on Thursday in Minneapolis, saying she and her lawyer threatened to file charges unless Hogan paid her off.

Kennedy's attorney, Peter Johnson, said she was the victim of a "very serious sexual assault" over Labor Day weekend, while involved in a promotional event featuring Hogan.

Johnson said Kennedy contacted Hogan and "attempted to settle it quietly" but didn't ask for money.

Hogan's lawyer said his client denies breaking the law. Hogan's publicist said Kennedy wrote to Hogan, threatening to file charges "with attendant publicity" unless he gave her money.

Johnson said he sent a letter to Hogan's home in Clearwater last month asking for the case to be resolved quietly without involving the police.

Hogan, who is married, denied Kennedy's charge.
